ASHI WESTERN WASHINGTON'S FALL EDUCATION SEMINAR

Submitted by Joanne MacKintosh, joanne.ashiww@gmail.com

On September 15 and 16, ASHI's Western Washington Chapter held its 2017 Fall Education Seminar in Seattle's northern suburb of Shoreline, WA. This two-day seminar drew 130 inspectors, most of whom are licensed home inspectors in Washington, as well as many home inspectors from Montana, Oregon, Idaho and Hawaii.

Brad Albin, the chapter's education chair, along with Mike Brisbin, the chapter's immediate past-president, kicked off the first morning by introducing Darrell Marsolais, ACI, and chair of the Washington State Home Inspector Licensing Board. Marsolais updated the group on changes to the laws and regulations of home inspector licensing.

Jeff Kyger, Northwest Log Home Care, kicked off the educational portion of the seminar with a presentation on log home care and maintenance. Then, our chapter's own Charles Buell, ACI, facilitated an entertaining discussion titled "Myths of Attic Ventilation." Dylan Chalk, ACI, our chapter's vice president and an author, talked about "Story Telling and Report Writing." After his presentation, we engaged in a discussion about foundations led by a local contractor from R&R Foundations.

Michael Casey, who needs no introduction to most ASHI members, carried the second day by leading discussions on several topics, including "IRC Structural Changes Update," "Floor and Roof Truss Inspections," "Unusual Components New and Old" and "High-Efficiency Appliance Venting."

Our chapter members benefit greatly from the educational seminars sponsored by the Western Washington Chapter. We welcome everyone who would like to attend. We provide great food and great speakers to guarantee our success! With our chapter's focus on the Year of the Mentor, our chapter membership has increased by 25%. Karl Neuffer, chapter president, and Dylan Chalk, chapter vice president, are expanding chapter members' opportunities for education and mentorship.

Many thanks to Brad Albin and Mike Brisbin for putting together another great seminar. Our next seminar will be held at the Boeing Museum in Everett, WA, in March 2018. Make plans to join us now! 📧

Darrell Marsolais, chair of Washington State Home Inspector Licensing Board, and Darrell Hay, chapter COR.

Dylan Chalk presents to chapter members.

Charlie Buell, presenter.
